I had Four Seasons install a Duro-Last roof, along with insulation, on my welding supply business this summer. Darrell was very easy to work with, explained all of the features of the roof, installation and warranty. After I decided to have his company do the installation, they were very prompt in starting the work. The 2 installers were great guys to deal with. They made sure that their work did not interfere with the operation of my business, and even came here on a Sunday to do most of the work. On top of that, it was a very hot day that Sunday, and they seemed very happy to be working that day. All of the work was done quickly and cleanly.

After the installation, I noticed that my air conditioner did not run as often as it had the past summers, even though we had more hot days than last year. The building just seemed cooler, as Darrell told me it would. When the electric bill arrived, I did notice that it was not as high as expected. I am looking forward to see how much the roof and insulation save me in heating costs this coming winter.

I would highly recommend Four Seasons for their quality, expedient work, and for being very easy to work with. I also thought it was a good value or the money I spent.
